

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. Which muscle is the most active during a right lateral excursion of the mandible?

- (a) Left masseter muscle
- (b) Right buccinator muscle
- (c) Right temporalis muscle
- (d) Right masseter muscle
- (e) Right lateral pterygoid muscle

2. If the frequency of males affected with an X-linked recessive condition in a human population is .

- (a) 0.001
- (b) 0.01
- (c) 0.1
- (d) 0.15
- (e) 0.0011

3. The proportion of babies that have an abnormality identifiable at birth is _____.

- (a) 1 in 100
- (b) 1 in 50
- (c) 1 in 5
- (d) 1 in 10
- (e) 1 in 1000

4. How are antibody producing cells stimulated?

- (a) Interacting with a virus short peptide
- (b) Interacting with a T helper cell.
- (c) Interacting with a plasma cell
- (d) Interacting with a virus infected cell

5. Which of the following is most strongly associated with loss of bone density?

- (a) Environmental factors such as exposure to radiation
- (b) Genetic factors
- (c) Psychological factors such as stress levels
- (d) Atmospheric factors such as air pollution
- (e) Socioeconomic factors such as income level

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

6. True or False: Enlargement of the submandibular lymph nodes often indicates potential infection
7. True or False: The ureter is the primary structure responsible for collecting urine in the body before
8. True or False: The risk of abnormality in the child of a mother with untreated phenylketonuria is a
9. True or False: The elderly often play a crucial role in facilitating effective change within a commu
10. True or False: Research has shown that prenatal maternal stress is a significant factor in social e

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

11. Discuss the role of ectomesenchyme in the development of melanocytes, including their origin, function, and implications for health and disease.
12. Discuss the role of the low-density lipoprotein receptor in the pathophysiology of familial hypercholesterolemia and its implications for metabolism.

End of Paper