True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

6. True or False: Bird migration is primarily, but not entirely, a Northern Hemisphere phenomenon. This is because land birds in high northern latitudes, where food becomes scarce in winter, leave for areas further south (including the Southern Hemisphere) to overwinter, and because the continental landmass is much larger in the Northern Hemisphere.
7. True or False: Also in 2013, Houston again appeared on Forbes' list of a different answer.
8. True or False: Some districts of the city are divided by the mountains themselves. Historically, it was relatively difficult to reach the inner part of Sicily from the city because of the mounts. The tallest peak of the range is a different answer, about 1,333 m (4,373 ft).
9. True or False: Qianlong allowed Han Chinese peasants suffering from drought to move into Manchuria despite him issuing edicts in favor of banning them from 1740-1776.
10. True or False: Kenya (/knj/; locally [ka] (listen)), officially the Republic of Kenya, is a country a different answer and a founding member of the East African Community (EAC).

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

11. Read the following passage and answer the question: The history of the Bronx during the 20 th century may be divided into four periods: a boom period during 1900-29, with a population growth by a factor of six from 200,000 in 1900 to 1.3 million in 1930. The Great Depression and post World War II years saw a slowing of growth leading into an eventual decline. The mid to late century were hard times, as the Bronx declined 1950-85 from a predominantly moderate-income to a predominantly lower-income area with high rates of violent crime and poverty. The Bronx has experienced an economic and developmental resurgence starting in the late 1980 s that continues into today. Question: When did the Bronx's income declined?
12. Read the following passage and answer the question: The birth of Islam on the opposite side of Somalia's Red Sea coast meant that Somali merchants, sailors and expatriates living in the Arabian Peninsula gradually came under the influence of the new religion through their converted Arab Muslim trading partners. With the migration of fleeing Muslim families from the Islamic world to Somalia in the early centuries of Islam and the peaceful conversion of the Somali population by Somali Muslim scholars in the following centuries, the ancient city-states eventually transformed into Islamic Mogadishu, Berbera, Zeila, Barawa and Merca, which were part of the Berberi civilization. The city of Mogadishu came to be known as the City of Islam, and controlled the East African gold trade for several centuries. Question: What body of water separated Somalia from the land where Islam was born?
