

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. The reticular formation and reticular activating system are associated with all of the following functions, EXCEPT:
 - (a) Alertness
 - (b) Sensation of taste
 - (c) Hunger and thirst regulation
 - (d) Decussation of auditory stimuli
 - (e) Pain
2. The diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease can be most accurately verified by
 - (a) Blood test showing elevated levels of certain proteins
 - (b) Electroencephalogram (EEG) showing abnormal brain activity
 - (c) ruling out other etiologies through a comprehensive psychodiagnostics workup
 - (d) neuropsychological testing showing the expected profile of deficits and spared functions
 - (e) Physical examination and patient history
3. When subjected to moderate punishment, an instrumental response of moderate strength will
 - (a) be temporarily suppressed but strengthen over time
 - (b) be eliminated
 - (c) be strengthened
 - (d) remain unchanged
 - (e) increase in frequency
4. The more difference shown by the behavior of identical twins raised apart, the more the differences in their behavior can be attributed to their
 - (a) hormonal changes
 - (b) innate abilities
 - (c) genetic traits
 - (d) environments
 - (e) educational backgrounds
5. Mr. Gordon suffered damage to the back of his right frontal lobe. As a result, he is unable to

- (a) Recognize faces
- (b) move his left hand
- (c) Hear sounds correctly
- (d) understand information he reads
- (e) speak intelligibly

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

- 6. True or False: Learned helplessness is an example of cognitive dissonance, where individuals feel powerless to change their circumstances.
- 7. True or False: The best presentation time to produce classical conditioning is a continuous pairing of the conditioned and unconditioned stimuli.
- 8. True or False: Object relations therapy primarily focuses on the client's conscious thoughts and feelings rather than early childhood experiences.
- 9. True or False: A 66-year-old client with similar symptoms is more likely to be diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease than Parkinson's disease.
- 10. True or False: It is advisable to ignore ethical violations among psychologists, as they are personal matters that don't require intervention.

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

- 11. Discuss the evidence supporting Incremental Theory and One-trial Theory in learning, specifically focusing on their applicability in cognitive versus motor tasks.
- 12. Discuss the significance of providing education and job training to adolescents and young adults post-drug treatment in terms of secondary intervention strategies in psychology.

End of Paper