

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. Traditional working class identity was based around:
 - (a) shared working conditions in the manufacturing industry
 - (b) the class consciousness of members of the proletariat
 - (c) local communities, extended kinship networks and shared leisure pursuits
 - (d) collective aspirations to move into the middle class
2. Warner and Myrdal claimed that black former slaves were not joining the 'ethnic melting pot' of the North American cities because:
 - (a) the white population did not believe in liberty, equality, and democracy
 - (b) they wanted to retain a strong sense of their original ethnic identity
 - (c) they were not prepared to leave the Southern states and move to North America
 - (d) the promise of citizenship was contradicted by continued discrimination
3. The human relations approach emphasized the importance of:
 - (a) scrutinizing employees as they interacted with customers
 - (b) teamwork, communication and employee satisfaction
 - (c) strict control and discipline to ensure high productivity
 - (d) providing therapy and counselling in the workplace
4. Chodorow (1978) argued that gender socialization occurred through:
 - (a) both boys and girls being closely attached to their mothers, but then boys breaking away
 - (b) girls being attached to their mothers but then breaking away
 - (c) boys being attached to their fathers and girls to their mothers
 - (d) both boys and girls being closely attached to their fathers, but girls breaking away
5. The 'post-industrial society' identified by Bell (1973) involved:
 - (a) the increasing power of trade unions in resolving industrial disputes
 - (b) a resurgence of interest in industrial production and manufacturing
 - (c) a shift towards a service economy, based on knowledge and information
 - (d) all of the above

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

6. True or False: An extended family includes only the immediate family members and does not involve relatives outside the household.
7. True or False: Frank (1967) argued that 'underdeveloped' societies are economically dependent on wealthy countries that exploit them.
8. True or False: The social construction of childhood can be traced back to the introduction of compulsory education, emotional ties, and consumer goods for children.
9. True or False: The 'new man' of the 1980 s was characterized as sensitive, caring, and emotional.
10. True or False: Murray believed the 'underclass' included individuals who were excessively dependent on welfare and lived in morally questionable conditions.

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

11. Discuss how Berger and Luckmann's concept of socially constructed reality illustrates the negotiation of shared definitions within society and the implications of this process on individual perceptions of reality.
12. Discuss the role of the family as the primary agent of socialization in early childhood, analyzing its impact on individual development and societal values.

End of Paper